

A Job Readiness Series for:

Entry Level Employability Skills

Essential Skills Development

Work Attitude and Service Skills

High School to Work Transition Skills

At Risk Youth Work Readiness Skills

Employment Skills for persons with disabilities

Workforce Development Programs for Youth

The WorkGo Job Readiness Animation series is designed to introduce basic employment attitudes and skills employers expect from new employees. The series presents seven characters finding their first jobs and a range of situations where they have to make decisions at work and see the probable consequences of their actions.

The program covers skills such as; having a positive attitude, being there, staying focused, doing your best, accepting guidance, being flexible, staying calm, looking after yourself, being honest, doing more than expected, communicating effectively, being a positive team player and being professional.

The program is designed for those with little or no work experience and focuses on entry level employment skills. The program uses an animation format with seven multi ethnic youth characters designed to engage and develop awareness of employers expectations about work attitudes, behaviors and skills. The program highlights attitudes and skills for achieving success at work.

The program is delivered in an online format only and can be used by a teacher or facilitator in a class or group setting, or can be assigned individually to students or clients. The program includes a teacher/facilitator guide, a student workbook with exercises along with scene summaries and quizzes.

For a demonstration of selected scenes in the series visit www.workgo.net

For a free trial of the program please email info@workgo.net or phone 1 866 477 8809